AD automatically imports groups from AD into the Infoportal. The import is done by AD group, where the administrator must define which AD group he wants to import into which Infoport group.

NTLM authentication - if the user is registered in Active Directory and Active Directory is configured, the user does not have to log in to Infoport manually - he is logged in automatically with his windows account. However, he can still log in manually (useful, for example, if another user needs to log in to the InfoPortal on the computer with the logged-in user.

If the user is not found in Active Directory and Infoport has multiple Active Directory servers configured, they are all searched in turn. If the user is not found anywhere, a login dialog is displayed where the user can log in manually (or just as a guest).

After clicking the "Create" button, the page to create the AD will be displayed. Where you need to fill in the "Name, URL, Username and Password".
